Birmingham Big Art Project

WHAT IS THE BIRMINGHAM BIG ART PROJECT?

The Birmingham Big Art Foundation aims to commission an internationally significant work of public contemporary art for the city of Birmingham in partnership with The Birmingham Civic Society. We hope the new work will be completed by April 2018. Eastside Projects are the commissioning agents, responsible for curating the process and artwork.

The objective of the Project is to commission and install an iconic piece of public art that is high quality, innovative, permanent and low in maintenance for Birmingham that will gain international recognition and put the city on the world's cultural map. With hopes of community engagement, in line with culture and wellbeing, this iconic piece of art hopes to become an important heritage for future generations of Birmingham. The anticipated cost for the project is £2 million. The overall goal of this project is to encourage citizenship and civic pride amongst the city's diverse communities through public art.

The site for Birmingham Big Art Project is the western entrance to the current Eastside City Park, which has been established around the existing Millennium Point building and in relation to the future construction of Birmingham's High Speed Railway station (HS2). It will be a major destination and arrival point in the city and a new 'Curzon Square' will be created over time around the artwork.
